GO TO THE ROOT OF THE EVIL

The entire state of California is at present in an advanced state of excitement over the hit and run driver, automobile accidents in general and the alleged carelessness of the motorist. A San Francisco bay paper recently conducted a contest to secure a fitting name for the hit and run driver. The hit and run driver are probably the greatest evil of the automobile today.

Much may be done to correct it but here is something that is well worth considering. The average person is not built to be a hit and run driver at heart. But here is a remark we heard not long ago from a man who appears to be honest and upright in every respect. "The next time I hit someone and don't kill him I'm going to beat it as fast as I can." This same man was the victim of something unfair which makes him a potential hit and run driver.

He fell under the axe of the "lawyers mill" or whatever you want to call it. He had been in a previous accident and given every first aid possible to his victim as the damage suit later proved but he was forced to hire an attorney and defend himself against a suit which was not started by the victim of the accident but by a scheming attorney who saw a fee in the accident. No one gained. The victim lost a great deal of time and lowered himself in the estimation of his fellow man because he virtually admitted by his testimony on the witness stand in the damage suit that he was to blame, at least the jury thought so and the attorneys got the fees.

A little publicity turned on attorneys who use this method and reports of accidents to make their living, might do away with a great deal of hit and run driving.

Another thing which might go a long way toward solving at least part of the problem is a law-walking law. Pedestrians wander hither and yon on our downtown streets without any respect for their lives or the nerves of motorists. The peculiar part of it all is that a great many of them are en route to their own cars parked on the opposite side of the streets. If the automobile driver knows where he may expect pedestrians he will be on the lookout. The place and manner in which automobiles may be driven is well defined. Why not regulate the movements of pedestrians especially on our business streets? And this is the thought of a person who spends more time on Macdonald avenue on foot than the average person. The law-walking law is working out in Los Angeles, and it is saving lives and broken limbs. A trial here might be well worth while.

AID ASKED IN GETTING FUNDS TO PROTECT THE STATE FORESTS

Protection of California Forests
Threatened by Budget
Reduction

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—The passage of adequate appropriations necessary to forest fire prevention by the present Congress needs the enlistment and support of all citizens and organizations who are interested in seeing California's forest fire protection, according to Charles G. Dunwoody, director of the conservation department of the state organization, who states that every possible assistance must be rendered California's representatives at Washington in this fight for the conservation of California's great forest lands.

The benefits of an adequate forest fire protection station in California are endangered by the bureau of budget's reduction in the asked for appropriation of $25,000 to $20,000. Dunwoody states that the proposed amount will not take care of all the needs of California's protection for forest fires, and that California must fight to put through the bill. The bureau of budget's further reduction to include in their recommendation the $20,000 weather bureau item for the employment of meteorologists in California this state is a severe handicap in the forest fire fighting force of this state.

BANKER HUNTED FOR SHORTAGE OF $100,000

RIVERBANK, Jan. 7.—The disappearance of C. L. Flack, former president of the First National Bank of Riverbank, has been connected with the vanishing of $100,000, which is said to have been borrowed by Flack on stock certificates in the Riverbank Water Company. Following the disappearance of the former bank president a month ago, shortages of more than $14,000 were discovered in his accounts with a result that national bank examiners ordered the doors of the bank closed.

A suit has been filed by John Cuneo present president of the bank, against Flack, for $2500 borrowed by Flack on a personal note and $3500 which Cuneo says is due him as salary as president of the bank. Flack is said to have borrowed money on several other concerns owned entirely or in part, by himself. Among these are the Riverside Land Company, the Riverbank Cannery, the West Side Creamery of Tracy, and the Vogue Ice Cream Company of San Francisco.

A loss of approximately $250,000 to farmers, business men and bankers throughout the state will result in the operations of Flack. He is being searched for in Mexico, where it is said he used to make his home.

RAILROADS AND EMPLOYEES IN A NEW SCHEME OF ARBITRATION

New Agreement Will Prevent Serious Railroad Strike in The Future

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Backed by the enthusiastic support of President Coolidge, the major railroad men of the country and their employees today perfected an agreement for friendly arbitration of all future disputes to prevent the possibility of serious railroad strikes.

The agreement produced through a series of conferences in the holiday season of Goodwill is regarded by the president as the most important peace between capital and labor ever effected in this country.

Many railroads have approved the plan. Every road in the country will be subject to it. About 1,700,000 employees in all branches of railroad industry, are affected by it.

It needs now only congressional approval. President Coolidge will ask Congress to pass the law. His vetoing it will be filed in Congress next week. The plan is understood to provide:

Abolition of the railroad labor board, a sore spot between labor and executives.

Main Line Trains Bear Burden
Of Operating Suburban

Richmond citizens are going to pay their part of the recent increase in fares granted the Key Route Lines and asked by the Southern Pacific lines if a petition filed with the Railroad commission on Wednesday by the Southern Pacific Company is granted.

An increase is asked by the company of from $5.50 to $8.30 for commutation books from Richmond to San Francisco. This new rate if allowed will apply to both the trains from the Richmond station at Sixteenth and Macdonald and the direct ferry.

According to J. E. Warren, chief clerk of the passenger rate department of the company the increase in rates is necessary to cover the cost of operation for suburban lines.

"Our books show a loss of $600,000 during the last year for the maintenance of suburban lines," Warren stated last night. He continued:

"The Richmond ferry has earned absolutely nothing for the company but it is the purpose of the company to give Richmond the best possible service on both the steam trains and the direct ferry but it is felt that the rates should be equalized somewhat."

"If it were not for the main line trains it would be impossible for the Southern Pacific to maintain this service. No other business is conducted along this line and the petition has been filed with the commission in an effort to equalize the rates somewhat."

Unofficial figures obtained some time ago indicated that at the present time the direct Richmond San Francisco Ferry is bringing in about one third of the actual cost of operation.

AN APPARENT FRAUD

If, as certain financiers with business interests in Russia desire, American recognition of the Soviet government again is to be made an issue here, an understanding of the nature of the regime in Russia now is important. This is because no fixed estimate will do. The judgment formed eight years ago when the dictatorship of the proletariat was inaugurated is out-of-date and erroneous today.

There was no doubt whatever of the revolutionary character of Russian experiment at its inception. If one's memory is not too short one may recall that the dictatorship began as a demonstration of the workings of communism. It was to be an idealistic system in actual operation. The world was to see that the theories of the communists would be successful in practice.

It will be recalled that private trade was to this end abolished. Money was abolished. Private property was abolished. The wage system was abolished. Taxation, in the sense of a money levy upon property was replaced by a primitive plan of sharing in goods produced.

Today all this is changed. The government has restored private trade, money, private property. It has abandoned its scheme of taxation for the usual, workable kind. The nefarious wage system again is in operation in Russia.

In other words the great experiment in communism has resulted in a demonstration that communism won't work. The experiment itself after making a wreck of Russia, now is a wreck.

But not so the so-called communistic regime in Russia. The government has been successful almost in direct proportion to the degree which it abandoned and betrayed the principles of communism. The dictators today are more firmly in the saddle than they were six years ago, because for the sake of maintaining their rule they have been willing to turn their backs upon the basic principles upon which it was supposed to rest.

The proposal, then, is that we recognize a dictatorship; not a dictatorship of the proletariat or even for the proletariat, but merely a dictatorship. A dictatorship, in fact, for the dictators. For it must be apparent that virtually all but the pretense of communism has been abandoned in Russia. The pretense is maintained because it is to the dictator's advantage to do so. It is proposed now that the United States recognize both the pretense and the pretenders as genuine. Having disapproved actual communism, we are asked to approve a make-believe. We do not think the American people will countenance such a fraud.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

A CURE THAT COSTS NOTHING

Grade Crossings accidents can be prevented, not by taxing public for grade changes, but by automobile drivers stopping and looking before crossing railroad tracks.

This is proven by experiments of the Standard Oil Company, of Indiana, which requires all its truck drivers to stop, look and listen before crossing railroad tracks.

In the year 1924, the vehicles operated by that company crossed railroad tracks 31,000,000 times without an accident.

Public officials and others having to do with the regulation of traffic and avoidance of accidents may well remember the significance of this performance.

It is a remedy for accidents which insures easy

A BATTLE WITH SAVAGES

Nothing was too startling to believe after the return of Christopher Columbus, that fearless explorer. No voyage was too terrifying to be undertaken, no explorer too timid to sail forth.

Alonso de Ojeda went with Columbus on his second trip to the West Indies in 1493. This trip gave him plenty of excitement, for he was captured by a fierce Indian chief, but safely released.

When he returned to Spain, Ojeda set about fitting up an expedition of his own. The king gave permits very easily so long as he did not have to give money also. This was contrary to his original agreement with Columbus to allow him sole rights of exploration.

A group of rich people are thought to have backed Ojeda's expedition.

He was accompanied by Amerigo Vesputi, for whom America was named, and a very scientific explorer named La Cosa.

The ships reached South America, passed the Orinoco and sailed north. At one point the natives asked their aid against a fierce band of warriors on a distant island.

This pleased Ojeda, who was never so happy as when in the thick of battle smoke. He took a couple of natives for guides and sailed to the cannibal island.

A fierce battle followed. There was the whizz of flying arrows. Thick smoke. Armed canoes. Splashing water. Screams. And at last submission.

Whenever opportunity offered Ojeda opened battle with anyone.

The next point of interest on his voyage was reached when he found a little village, built up on piles in the water. He called the land Venezuela, or Little Venice, because it reminded him of the Venetian streets of water.

On he sailed, stopping here and there in search of treasure—and warfare. He found interesting lands, but no treasure.

Finally he sailed for Hispaniola. He cast anchor but was promptly ordered on by Columbus, who was in supreme power there.

Ojeda spent his life on shipboard in search of thrills and fortune. The thrills were his! But the fortune he never found. He died in poverty. Tomorrow: Balboa finds the Pacific.

Pumpkin and its Uses

HOW much the spicy smell of pumpkin contributes to the spirit and atmosphere of the holidays! Everyone wants pumpkin pie at this time and the fact that prepared pumpkin can now be bought in tins with nine-tenths of the work already done, makes pumpkin pie one of the easiest desserts.

This recipe is sufficient for two pies: Beat slightly two eggs, add one and one-half cups of sugar, one pint milk—diluted evaporated may be used instead of fresh milk—one-half teaspoon ginger, one teaspoon of cinnamon, one-half teaspoon salt, one No. 2 can of unsweetened pumpkin. Pour into a pie plate lined with paste and bake in a moderate oven.

Though everyone is familiar with pumpkin pie, few people realize that there are other easy and delicious ways of cooking pumpkin, which can be used not only for dessert but for other courses.

For instance, the same pumpkin custard used for pie filler can be served as scalloped pumpkin in the same baking dish, casserole or individual custard cups in which it has been cooked—an easy, delicious and attractive dessert, easier than making pie, inasmuch as there is no pastry to bake.

Pumpkin also makes an excellent and healthful entree. Mix a can of unsweetened pumpkin with two beaten eggs, cracker crumbs, milk, a dash of salt, and bake in a casserole with strips of bacon over the top.

ONE DEATH PER 1000 AUTOS IN A YEAR IS RECORD OF U. S.

1 Person is Killed and 28 injured annually for every 1000 Automobiles in this Country

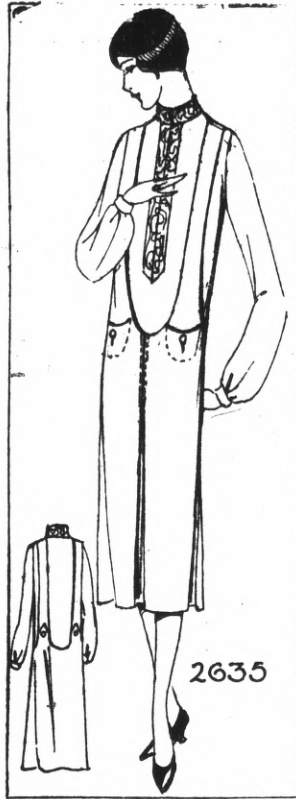

ONE out of a thousand is the relationship between the annual automobile fatalities and the number of motor vehicles in this country, according to the Steward-Warner Safety Council for the prevention of automobile accidents, which has undertaken a strenuous campaign of automobile safety and accident prevention.

And for every fatality there are at least 28 accidents serious enough to get on record. This does not take into consideration minor sprains and bruises or people suffering from nervous shock as the result of being in an automobile accident.

To appreciate what a vast army of killed and injured is annually conscripted by the reckless motorist and careless pedestrian, a comparison may be made with American casualties in the great war. Over a third as many people are killed annually by automobiles as there were American soldiers killed on the field of battle during the entire war, while the number injured each year is nearly three times as great as the number of our boys who were wounded throughout the war.

and quick cure at no expense to taxpayers, whereas to remedy by grade changes would take half a century for the 256,000 crossings in the United States, and cost the taxpayers no less than $15,000,000,000.

SYNOPSIS

In Paris, France, Michael Verre, on the 1st of de la Mi-Carême, invites some passing street revelers in to join his guests, because the latter, a pretty girl dressed as Columbine, attracts his plunderer's eye. Dubouché, one of his cast-offs, threatens revenge. "Columbine" or Colette, dances for Michael, but faints from over exertion. Michael lifts her into his arms just as his proud old Aunt walks in.

He hastily carried Colette out and laid her on a chaise longue. Asking Armand to look after her, Michael then returned to the ballroom, and the Duchess. "This is indeed a delightful surprise, for I did not expect you until tomorrow," he said, although his feelings belied his words. "And Paul here, too? How are you, my dear brother?" shaking the hand of a young chap who had followed the Grand Duchess and who had witnessed the embarrassing scene with unholo glee. Ten years younger than his brother Michael, Paul was of an entirely different type. He was a pale, dreamy face with a peculiarly wistful smile. Michael was devoted to him and always looked forward to his visits, en route to college where he was finishing his last year. Michael had always shielded this younger brother from the gay, effervescent existence that had been his own lot. He had tried to interest Paul in the finer things of life. Not that Paul had no taste for a pretty face; for he had, indeed, as his smiles at some of the girls that grouped around him attested.

And yet, Michael, possibly realizing the hollow and idleness of his own career, had determined that he would do all in his power to prevent Paul from following in his footsteps. "Exactly the same, Michael, I ob-these days I may completely surprise you by retiring every night with the proverbial chickens and arising each morning with the early worms."

"If that ever happens, then the day of miracles has not yet passed," and with that irony like crackling meteor dust, the Grand Duchess Sophia departed.

"One more score in Aunt Sophia's black book," groaned Michael to his brother. "Well, we can't all be saints, but for the life of me I fail to see her reason for disapproving of tonight's little party. I hope that I shall never reach the stage where the Fete de la Mi-Carême means nothing to me. And now my dear Paul, please amuse your self for a few moments while I see how our little Columbine is faring."

Walking over to the balcony he noticed Armand looking up and down the street. Colette was no on the couch.

"Where is Colette?" Michael asked. "She's gone, Michael!" Armand answered. "A minute ago I left her for just an instant, and when I returned she had disappeared. She must have climbed over the balcony, for she certainly did not pass through the ballroom."

Michael laughed and sat down on the vacant chaise longue. "The little rascal!" he said. "Just as irresponsible as all gamins."

And yet, did he in his heart believe that? His eyes fell on her mask where it had fallen beside the couch. Absently, he picked it up. Just a fluffy, trifling thing, but somehow its daintiness seemed symbolic of her.

Thrusting the mask into his pocket, Michael rejoined his guests in the ballroom just as Colette's friends were leaving. He insisted that they fill their pockets with fruit and bon-bons from the table. "You may get hungry ere dawn, so fortify yourselves well; and if you see my little Columbine again, pray present her with this apple and tell her that not only is it the judgment of the Rue Chaligny—it is the judgment of Paris!"

So, with many laughs and thanks the motley crew departed, leaving the room once more to Michael and his friends.

Noticing Paul's absence, Michael assumed that he had grown weary of waiting and had retired. So Michael threw himself into the breach that his aunt's visit had caused, and soon dispelled the gloom.

"More wine, Sergius," he cried "and let the strains of music waft away the darkening shadow of my revered Aunt's unexpected visitation! Remember, my friends, the night is young. Ninon, for once I am going to exercise brute force if necessary and tear you away from Freddy's arms for the next dance. Your refusal will simply mean that I shall personally insist on his singing again."

"Take me, Michael, I am yours, with such a fate as that hanging over my head!" Ninon rushed playfully into his arms.

The moonlight streamed like white, tangible romance through the French windows when the servants extinguished the lights of the huge chandelier in the middle of the room, leaving only faint and elusive colored beams radiating from the decorative candelabras on the side tables. The orchestra was playing a softly rhythmic waltz and the very air seemed glow with enchantment and care less love, as the light-hearted waltzers glided through the half lights like ghosts of ancient court ladies and cavaliers.

"A night fit not for the Gods but for us, Ninon," Michael murmured to his partner. "A moonlight night anywhere in the world is beautiful, but in Paris—and with such a charming dancing partner—it is—ah—" He left her to guess from his mellow nuances the completeness of his enslavement.

"Would you not rather be dancing with your little Columbine?" teased Ninon with a quizzical smile. "She seems to attract you greatly, Michael, but beware—entertaining an unknown girl of the streets is sometimes a dangerous pastime! True, I do not suppose that she has relieved any of your guests of their jewels, but she may have a brute of an Apache for a lover or something like that. Gamins to thief—not an unknown duality, Michael!"

"I know Paris and its inhabitants pretty well—though I must admit that the process of education was a costly one—and I would swear that little girl did not have the face of a thief. It seemed to me that in spite of her flippancy there was a determined mind, a fine character, in that young head. True, her graceful dancing charmed me, but through her laughter I could see another side of her life, and not a happy one. A struggle for existence, a constant fight for ideals in the face of tremendous odds. Somehow, I guessed that!"

PITTSBURG IS EXPECTING BIG PLANTS SOON

PITTSBURG, Jan. 7.—Speculation is rife today on the nature of the development expected to follow the investment of $86,500 in unimproved property, three miles west of Pittsburg, on the main highway within the past month and the huge offers being made for adjoining property.

The Burkhardt Investment company of Los Angeles bought the 550-acre Banning estate for $65,000, the Poinsettia Land company bought the adjoining 66 acres at a reported price of $15,000. E. H. Howard, garageman and Chamber of Commerce official, has purchased 41 acres across the road for $6,500 with no inkling of his plans for developing the tract, other than that it probably would not be used for agricultural purposes.

Industrial Accident Commission Had Big Saving In Operation It Is Shown By Report Submitted

The annual report of the Industrial Accident Commission recently filed with Governor Friend W. Richardson shows the tremendous savings effected under the present Commission, which has served only during Governor Richardson's incumbency. This saving is shown by a comparison of the departmental income and expenditures of the Commission for the years July 1, 1919 to June 30, 1925 and the expenditures for the same period. From July 1, 1919 to June 30, 1925, the Commission's income and expenditures totaled $404,300 and the expenditures totaled $340,365.61; from July 1, 1925 to June 30, 1926, the income and expenditures were $358,043.30 and the expenditures totaled $100,372.40; from July 1, 1926 to June 30, 1927, the income and expenditures were $401,093.80 and the expenditures totaled $391,978.61; from July 1, 1927 to June 30, 1928, the income and expenditures were $416,447.80 and the Commission's expenditures amounted to only $413,318.18.

The report of the Commission shows that during the period from July 1, 1923 to June 30, 1924, which was the first year under the present administration, the Commission's expenditures were less than the income and that during the last two fiscal years the expenditures of the Commission have only exceeded its income by $97,349.46.

Exact figures indicate that for the period from July 1, 1923 to June 30, 1924 the Commission's expenditures amounted to $370,432.25 while its expenditures totaled $373,425.29, and that from July 1, 1923 to June 30, 1925, the appropriation and income amounted to $370,432.25 while its expenditures were $363,736.14.

The six-year period from 1919 to 1925 is used for the reason that from July 1, 1919, the Commission has been operating under the uniform system of state accounting. While strict economy has been practiced, the work of the Commission has not suffered, as the report shows. The number of cases filed with Commission for adjustment increased over the preceding fiscal year by 27 per cent, while the increase in cases decided over the like period was 12 per cent.

The staff of the Department of Safety was increased by four men during the year, being a percentage increase of 21. The inspections made by the Department of Safety totaled 16,768, compared with a total of 10,932 inspections made in the preceding year 1923-1924. This is an increase of 53 per cent.

The report calls attention to certain legislation sponsored by the Commission at the last session of the Legislature, which requires that all employers of labor, except those specifically exempted by the Workmen's Compensation, Insurance and Safety Act, shall make provision for the payment of compensation. Failure or neglect to comply with this provision of the law is a misdemeanor punishable by fine and jail sentence.

The last Legislature passed and Governor Richardson approved an amendment to the Act which increases the amount of compensation allowed in total death benefit cases. As the law stood prior to the amendment burial expense of not more than $100 was provided for, which sum was payable out of the amount awarded to the dependents. Thus, in an award of $5,000 the actual amount going to the dependents would generally be $4,900. Under the amended law the dependents would receive the full $5,000 and an allowance for burial of $150 would be made in addition.

The report calls attention to the provisions of the present Compensation Act excluding farm and kindred labor. While the law makes provision for the inclusion of such labor if the employer so desires, and many employers throughout the State have voluntarily brought their employees under the benefit of the Act, it is nevertheless a fact that many injuries are reported to the Commission in these occupations, where the employer is reluctant to pay the cost of the injury to his own resources or public charity. If the theory is correct that compensation is the equitable distribution of the industrial burden, then it would seem that there should be no exception where the employment is a recognized industry with its industrial hazards. Farm and kindred labor, the report states, have grown more hazardous with the introduction of modern machinery and the use of explosives. In 1924-1925 were responsible for 32 fatal accidents 40 permanently disabled persons and 5,115 injuries causing temporary disability.

Tables contained in the report show the continued healthy growth and sound financial status of the State Compensation Insurance Fund, which is administered by the Commission. The fund now does a premium business of nearly $6,000,000 per year and returns an average 30 per cent yearly dividend to its policyholders. On June 30, 1925 the fund's reserves amounted to $4,347,424.79 and its catastrophe surplus totaled $2,156,988.78.

The report also contains a diagram showing the comparative industrial fatalities over the ten-year period, 1914-1924. It is interesting to note that the number of fatalities per 100,000 population has decreased from 25 in 1914 to 16.4 in 1924.

Work Rushed On The Carquinez Straits Bridge

CROCKETT, Jan. 7.—With about 100 men at work, the steel construction on the Carquinez Straits bridge was started this week. The crew is being enlarged daily and the work will be rushed through. To facilitate the handling of the heavy materials, the Southern Pacific has laid a spur track to the bridge and several cars of steel arrive daily from the eastern mills where it is being put out by the United Steel Products company, holding the contract for its erection.

The progress has been delayed somewhat due to a number of men leaving their work and quitting on account of the cold weather of the past two weeks. The concrete sub-structure of the bridge is being laid by about 300 men in the employ of the Missouri Valley Bridge company.

MANY THRILLS IN PICTURE AT THE CALIFORNIA

Film fans who thrilled at the previous sea battle in "The Sea Hawk" can thrill again to the blood-thirsty clash when "Clothes Make the Pirate," the Sam E. Barker-First National adventure, that comes to the California theatre today and tomorrow.

An attack by a pirate ship, with the black flag of defiance fluttering over its belching sails, on a heavily armed British war sloop, climaxes the thrills of the battle scenes. Shells from the opposing cannon tear away masts and sails, the ships ram and butt each other, and the two crews come to grips in a desperate attempt to "board the enemy."

Withal, "Clothes Make the Pirate" is a comedy. It is an adaptation of Holman Day's novel of the same title, a travesty on a hump-backed Boston tailor. He runs away from his wife and meets up with a pirate crew who mistake him for a notorious buccaneer chief whose appearance they are awaiting.

Leon Errol, world-famed as the leading comedian of Ziegfeld's New York musical comedies, and particularly remembered by screen fans for his work in Colleen Moore's "Sally," is starred as the tailor turned pirate, with Dorothy Gish as his shrewish New England wife.

The supporting cast boasts of Nita Naldi, Tully Marshall, James Rennie, New York's most popular stage leading man; Edna Murphy, George Marion, Reginald Barlow and Walter Law.

"Clothes Make the Pirate" was adapted to the screen by Marion Fairfax, noted screen executive who also supervised the production. It was directed by Maurice Tourneur.

FOREIGN TRADE REVIEW AND FUTURE PROSPECTS

BY JULIUS KLEIN
Director, United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce

3RD INSTALLMENT

Turning now to imports, the total value of our import trade for 1925 increased even more than that of exports, being about 17 per cent greater than in 1924. While this increase reflects the greater prosperity of the country, with enhanced buying power for tropical and semi-tropical foodstuffs and exotic raw materials, it is unfortunately attributed also in considerable part to marked increases in the prices of a number of important articles, such as rubber, coffee, tin, wool and hides and skins; and some of these increases in turn are due to indefensible artificial restrictions directed against the consumers of the United States.

The most striking phenomenon in our import trade of 1925 has been the great advance in the price of rubber, raising it, as in all probability the final figures will show, to first place among our imports. For the first ten months the quantity of rubber imported increased by 19 per cent over the corresponding period of 1924, but the value increased 121 per cent. During recent months the average import price has been much more than double that for the corresponding months of 1924. Had rubber remained unchanged in price, the total value of our imports would have increased but 11 per cent instead of 17 per cent. This increase in the price of rubber has been at least in part due to artificial restrictions, the serious character of which Secretary Hoover has recently called to the general attention of the public.

Another considerable fraction of the increase in value of imports has been due to the higher price of coffee. While the quantity imported has been one-fifth less than in 1924, the value has been about one-sixth greater, indicating an increase of about one-third in price. This rise is largely attributable to artificial control. There was also a marked advance in the average prices of other major import items, wool, tin, petroleum, burlaps, and hides and skins. These various increases were only in part offset by certain price declines, the most noteworthy of which was the fall of more than 35 per cent in the price of sugar, bringing that item down from first to fourth rank among our imports.

Among the five great classes of exports, the only one to show a decrease in 1925 was manufactured foodstuffs, and this was wholly attributed to the lower price of sugar. Crude foodstuffs increased by 15 per cent, being materially swelled by the higher price of coffee. Imports of crude materials have tended to grow year by year since 1921, but the increase of 1925, no less than 38 per cent, was materially accentuated by advance in prices. Imports of semi-manufacture goods rose by 17 per cent, but those of finished manufactures, which have long tended to become a smaller proportion of the total, increased by only 5 per cent.

The high buying power of the United States in 1925 is indicated by the fact that most of the major individual articles of import increased quantitatively even when higher prices had to be paid for them. Increases, in most cases exceeding 10 per cent, and in several exceeding 25 per cent, appeared in silk, sugar, rubber, wool, paper, furs, hides and skins, wood pulp, tobacco, tin, fertilizers, burlaps, vegetable oils and lumber. A conspicuous decline in flax-seed imports has taken place during the last two years as the result of marked increase in production in this country.

Our imports from Germany in 1925 showed an increase of nearly 60 per cent. Those from Asia rose nearly 40 per cent, advancing this continent to first place among our sources of supply. These great increases, however, were in no small part due to higher prices of articles from these countries. The slight decrease in our imports from North America is more than explained by the lower price of sugar. Imports from South America and Europe each rose by about 13 per cent.

The experience of 1925 has thus been highly encouraging with respect to the competitive ability of the United States in the export of commodities—particularly those in which efficiency and enterprise on the part of producers and traders is able to bring results while the increase of imports likewise furnishes ground for gratification. But the experience of the year has also emphasized the necessity for giving careful attention to securing the goods we need from abroad at reasonable prices. Although the United States is more nearly self-sufficient than any other important country, the maintenance of its high standard of living demands large importation of a number of exotic commodities. In some of these our consumption constitutes half or more of the total world consumption. There has consequently developed in a number of foreign countries a tendency to impose artificial restrictions in order to enhance the price which must be paid by the United States. This country itself has always refrained from any governmental measures tending to enhance the price of its exports; on the contrary it has a vigorous legislation to prevent its citizens from doing so. The question of measures to combat these exactions deserves prompt and earnest consideration. (THE END)

"The Night Club" Is Attraction At Richmond Theatre

Pedestrians who constantly dodge automobiles are soon to have an opportunity to take a few lessons from Raymond Griffith, who claims he is an expert.

Griffith gives these lessons in "The Night Club," his latest Paramount picture, which opens today at the Richmond Theatre.

Several of the scenes show Griffith in a Spanish town, pursued by a car driven by Vera Reynolds. Miss Reynolds loses control of her machine and it chases Griffith all over the street. To save himself from being run down he emulates the climbing feats of a monkey and leaping to a street lamp suspended from an arch, pulls himself to a safe position just as the car dashes beneath him. As he drops from the street lamp the machine charges toward him again and he does some very creditable sprinting and dodging. It is certain to have the full sympathy of the thousands who walk and dodge.

"The Night Club" was adapted from William de Mille's stage play "After Five." The production was directed for Paramount by Paul Irlbe and Frank Urson, who made "Forty Winks." Players featured with Griffith and Miss Reynolds include Wallace Beery and Louise Fazenda.

Other features on the same program include "The Dome Doctor," a Larry Semon "Laugh Month" comedy; "Boneyard Blues," an Earl Hurd pen and ink vaudeville film.

The results of the negotiations of months were disclosed to President Coolidge in a series of White House conferences, which concluded today. Alfred P. Thomas, general counsel of the Association of Railway Executives, was followed to the White House by a committee representing the employees, which consisted of President D. B. Robertson of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers; vice-president, W. N. Doak, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, General Counsel Donald Richberg of the railroad organizations and President B. M. Jewell of the American Federation of Labor.

General W. W. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania System, which has usually played a lone hand in labor matters, also visited the President today and is understood to have signified his approval of the agreement. The railroad brotherhood repre-

WESTERN AUTO EMPLOYEES GET A STOCK BONUS

During the first week of January, the Western Auto Supply Company distributed to its employees, a bonus in the form of common stock in the company.

Each employee who has been in the service of the company for one calendar year ending January first, received a bonus amounting to one-twelfth of his annual earnings.

This system of distribution has been in effect at the Western Auto Supply Company during the past few years. This year over 500 employees will enjoy the bonus, which according to George Popperding, President of the company amounted to something like $100,000.

Since its inception, the officials of Western Auto have encouraged employees to become stockholders until today a goodly portion of the outstanding stock is in the hands of those who are actively engaged in the service of the company and who are responsible for the rapid growth of the concern.

The Western Auto Supply Company advocates the theory that the interest of the employee and employer is mutual and that in order to expect the best co-operation from its employees, any concern must have the interest of its employees at heart.

For this reason, the company finds it not only profitable to pay its co-workers salaries as high as in many cases higher than the average wage, but also to give a liberal bonus in stock.

The company urges its men to keep the stock and the dividends from year to year and accumulate a worth while interest in the business.

The Western Auto Supply Company officials and employees call themselves the "Western Auto Family." The spirit of friendliness and good fellowship can be seen throughout the organization and this factor is largely responsible for the conscientious work among all its people in putting forth every effort possible toward the rapid development of the business.

Word has been received from Rev. H. I. Oberholtzer, vicar of the St. Edmund's Episcopal church that he is improving greatly and expects to be back in Richmond in time for the parish dinner on January 11. Rev. Oberholtzer is a patient at the St. Helena sanitarium.

Representatives said to the President that his friendly interest had encouraged both the executives and themselves in coming to terms.

Harry Greb, world champion middleweight, will defend his title against Leo Lomaki, of Washington, on February 3, in Oakland. Promoter Tommy Simpson announced yesterday, Simpson said that articles have not yet been signed but declared that both parties have accepted terms offered by wire.

Greb will arrive in Oakland early next week to start training.

The fight will be at the middleweight limit and with the belt at stake, Simpson said. It will be the first championship fight in Oakland in twenty years.

In order that the fight might be put through the Lemski-Pekela bout scheduled for January 20 has been called off. Lemski walloped every fighter of his weight he met in the northwest and before coming south, put Bert Collina to sleep. Collina was claimant of the Pacific coast championship.

The boys will have to buck over 200 pounds of weight to a man. California is noted for its speed, but the Richmond quintet is also one of the fastest teams in the parts.

The Frosh have never yet been beaten by the high school aggregation, but they have been given some scares on several occasions. This trip the local team is out for blood and expects to establish a precedent.

The ten basketballers making the journey were selected by Hill yesterday. They are: Vilorovos, Dyer, Santella and Clark, forwards; O. Johnson and H. Johnson, centers; Barbieri and Gualdoni, running guards; Thompson and Mi-

BERKELEY, Jan. 7.—Marie Bailey, of Berkeley, a student of the University high school, attempted to end her life early this morning by drinking poison as a result of worry over her belated diploma from the school.

The girl, who had been treated by two doctors for some time for fallen arches and was ordered to wear high heeled shoes to prevent serious injury. The requirements of the school are that in the gymnasium the students must wear low heeled shoes. Marie Bailey asked to be released, but a doctor's certificate was asked for.

According to the physical instructor this was not forthcoming until December 10, although the request was made early in November. In the meantime a low heeled shoe which she had been given the girl, subject to reconsideration upon receipt of the certificate.

Baby Saved From Heart Trouble

Nov. 6, 1925. Our baby, Myrtle, had been ailing for two years, during which time we had taken her to many physicians, none of whom knew what was the matter with her.

Myrtle steadily grew worse. Her heart beat rapidly and noisily, she had but little blood, and the pallor of her face was like the whiteness of a sheet of paper. She finally became so weak that she could neither walk nor eat.

Some doctors thought it might be her teeth, but they had all come through and she was getting worse every day.

We were recommended to see the Fong Wan. He found that she was suffering from heart trouble. She had taken the Fong Wan Herbs for three months and is in fine health.

WORLD COURT ATTACKED BY FARM LEADER

By BENJAMIN O. MARSH,
Of The People's Reconstruction
League and the Farmers'
National Council.
Written Expressly for Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Our adherence to the World Court is sincerely supported by honest people who have been bamboozled into believing it will mean the undisputed sway of the Prince of Peace. Some of those urging our adherence most vehemently know that, of itself, it means nothing. It won't do America any good to adhere to the court, and it won't do America any harm to adhere to good common sense, keep out of the court and devote herself to fostering international trade and good will.

We won't submit any cases to the World Court if we join it, unless we want to, and we don't have to join it to submit to it just as many disputes as entangling alliances can get us into. The chief burden of the opening speech in favor of our adherence, made by Senator Swanson, was that judges from large countries have voted in the World Court decisions against the contention of their own countries. That is very beautiful, but the advocates of adherence should tell us whose chestnuts the American judge in the World Court is to pick out of the international fire.

Those who shout loudest for our adherence to the World Court were keenest to get us into the League of Nations, the impotence of which is exceeded only by the imperialistic aspirations of its sponsors.

Our adherence to the World Court is really sponsored in the Senate chiefly as an alibi for the administration's failure to do anything for Americans, and a lullaby for the good people of this country who don't want war and can be fooled into thinking that adherence will prevent it. They admit they expect our next excursion abroad will be into the League of Nations.

The administration has done nothing for farmers or wage earners, and nearly everything for the international bankers and highly protected manufacturers of the East.

center of the structure as the Lancaster drew near, one of them leaping the railing as the bridge toppled and diving into the water, to be picked up after swimming half way to the shore, by Albert Tressi in the launch American. Harold Cassius, the other boy, is a cripple, and made little headway, and as the crash came was terribly crushed between the crumpling iron girders of the span. Cassius, sinking, was rescued by Captain August Wilson of the sloop Hercules, which was moored at dock at the Oakland end of the ruined bridge.

All three persons were taken to the Oakland emergency hospital, where they were treated. Sullivan and the crippled lad are not expected to live as a result of their injuries. Albert Lancaster suffered only from immersion and shock.

The bridge had been opened to allow the steamship Robin Goodfellow to pass through from the bay into the estuary, to tie up at the Encinal Terminal. The Lancaster had just left the terminal in tow at the side of the bridge until the Robin Goodfellow passed through. After the Robin Goodfellow passed one way, the bridge was held open while traffic waited impatiently for the Lancaster to pass through. As the ship approached the draw, it swung in some manner from the clear cutting end of the open draw. The force of the collision was too much for the bridge to withstand, and the span toppled.

Thousands of persons were hours late in getting to their destinations, as a result of the crash, as the accident occurred during the rush hour. Traffic is seriously hindered as the bridge is the only link between downtown Oakland and Alameda since the condemnation of the Harrison street bridge.

The next nearest crossing is nearly two miles out of the direct course, being at High street.

FRANCE FORCES FOREIGNERS TO PAY BIG TAXES

PARIS, Jan. 7.—France may be the garden of the world, but it isn't going to be a pasture, declared Monsieur Michel Missoffe, member of the French Parliament, explaining to Universal Service his campaign to make foreigners pay higher taxes in France.

Monsieur Missoffe had just persuaded the Chamber of Deputies, by a vote of 220 to 65, to impose an extra tax of twenty per cent on the value of all real estate sold or bought by foreigners.

"Now, first of all, please don't think my measures against foreigners are directed against the Americans," continued Monsieur Missoffe. "Many of my warmest friendships were made during my service with Americans in 1918. There are less than 50,000 permanent American residents in France out of a total of 3,000,000 foreigners."

"Neither is my campaign directed against the tourists. They are not only welcome, but no one can even consider the possibility of taxing them. We do, however, believe that foreigners, who live in France year after year, should bear their share of the cost of government."

"America has had its immigration problem, and therefore I don't expect any American in France will misunderstand what I am trying to do. My program regarding foreigners falls under three headings."

"First of all is the question of police matters. We must find a means of preventing other European countries from dumping their undesirable citizens into France. You understand this thoroughly in America, and you have Ellis Island. The French frontier is much more difficult to defend against an unweakened immigrant invasion however, than is the American coast."

"Secondly, we have a problem of foreign labor, which neither does military service, nor pays the taxes paid by native labor. It isn't fair to deprive a French farmer of his son, who is taken away for military service, while the son of an Italian immigrant farmer, on the next plot of ground is free from service."

"Last of all, foreigners who are resident in France must be required to bear the same tax burden as our own citizens. There are 25,000 foreign business enterprises in Paris alone. Each of these will, if my project is adopted pay a surtax for the privilege of doing business in France."

Monsieur Missoffe is also an alderman in the Paris municipal council, and through his efforts a large increase has been made in the price of identity cards for foreigners.

$600,000,000 A YEAR LOSS CAUSED BY AUTO ACCIDENTS

CLOSE to $600,000,000 a year is the annual economic loss due to automobile accidents, both fatal and non-fatal. This appalling sum is only an estimate, as no complete figures on the number of automobile accidents in the United States are available, but it has been conservatively estimated that 22,600 lose their lives each year by automobiles and $5,000 a human life is the lowest value put on it by economists.

Of non-fatal accidents 678,000 occur annually, causing average cost of $175. Then, each accident averages $50 property damage, insurance records show. This makes the staggering total of $581,650,000 a year. No account is taken here, points out the Stewart-Warner Safety Council for the prevention of automobile accidents, of the economic value of time loss by the injured due to delays caused by accidents or to minor property values, such as bent fenders, expense incurred while motor vehicles, particularly the commercial ones, are out of service, due to accidents. Were all these taken into the reckoning, the total figure would easily be doubled, or around $1,113,750,000.

CUT IN PRICES IS ANNOUNCED FOR DODGE CARS

Dodge Brothers are making good on their recent announcement that prices would be given a substantial reduction on all cars on January 7.

Richmond people who purchased Dodge automobiles from Charles M. Courtright local Dodge dealer since December 15 are in on the cut in prices and will receive reimbursement from the company for the difference in the price of the car they purchased and its price as announced in the cut.

The reductions amount to almost 15 per cent on the former Dodge Brothers prices and are extremely radical and effective when the former price of the car and the usual conservative practices of Dodge Brothers are taken into account.

As a result of the announcement last month of the reductions which were retroactive upon cars purchased since December 15, Courtright has had an unparalleled demand for the Dodge Brothers models.
